

1. Our initial proposal

This is just a starting point, based around your brief. Our aim is to work with you to create a menu and service that meets your exact requirements.

Once you have had a chance to look through the proposal then do come back to us with any questions.

If we haven't already had a chance to meet it would be great to get together and talk through your booking in more detail

2. Making a booking

Key dates do get booked up quickly and we may have several enquiries out at once. Once you have decided that you would like us to cater for you, we will send out a booking form and booking invoice to secure the date.

Until we receive both your booking form and payment your date is not reserved and will still be available.

3. Working closely with you

We aim to work closely with you on all aspects of the wedding. Menus can be tweaked or re-designed to fine tune them to your requirements. We can talk through options for cutlery, glassware, crockery and linens; advise on drinks quantities and sourcing; recommend photographers, bands, DJ's, florists, marquees and cake makers

How it works

4. Tasting

Once you are at the stage where you know what you are looking for from your menu we would arrange a tasting date for you. We offer a free tasting for the Bride and Groom. This is a great opportunity, not only to finalise the menu, but also talk through all the other aspects of your day in more detail.

5. Final meeting

However many other meetings and conversations we have throughout the process, one of the most important things is the 'final meeting'. This generally takes place around three weeks before your day and is held onsite so that we can literally walk the course. This is your opportunity to talk through the day in its entirety and hand everything over so that you can then relax knowing you have made all the decisions and ticked all the boxes

6. Making it happen

On the day we are there to make it happen for you. From setting up and greeting your guests with their first drink to making sure that the whole day runs seamlessly so that you can relax and enjoy yourselves
